Dollar Squeeze vs. Book Squeeze Major Problem in Public Library's Expansion Plans

Princeton's handsome public library building was built a decade ago to accommodate 100,000 books. It now has 99,335.

With that high watermark approaching, librarian Robert Staples and his board of trustees have $780,000 expansion plans in hand. They are eager to go ahead while construction costs are relatively stable and before the library gets too crowded.

Early next month--on August 9, if the date agreed on by Township Committee Monday night is followed--Borough and Township will sit down with Mr. Staples and his trustees and look at the plans.

Township Mayor Jay Bleiman won't comment at all in advance of that meeting. Borough Council finance chairman Gus Escher says everyone on Council is "positively disposed" toward expansion, but...and he mentions looming sewer costs and school and county taxes.

Princeton's use of its library is beyond anything dreamed of ten years ago, although Mr. Staples reminds people that the professional consultant, hired to advise the community about its new library commented on the decision to pare down the building's planned-for 37,000 square feet to its present 29,850, by warning, "You'll regret it."

Use? There are 17,334 people in Borough and Township with library cards -- some 60 percent of the population. Circulation here is about 15 books (or records, or films) per person per year. In most towns, eight is regarded as a good, strong figure, and five is a more usual average.

Jack Hammer, treasurer of the library's trustees, does these calculations, coming up with the fact that Princeton people with cards read 30 "books" a year. We use quotation marks because the figure does include films and records. In fact, Mr. Hammer says with enthusiasm, every book--and he means books this time--circulates five or six times over a year, and his figures include all those reference books people use but aren't allowed to check out.

It could go on and on--books checked out, Mr. Hammer says, pile up to ten stories high, and so forth.

Reading books, listening to records...it all has a sort of leisurely, affluent, summer-hammock sound and it disturbs Mr. Staples.

"I often think people have a kind of--well, Western-Section-of-Princeton approach to the library," he worries, "and it just isn't so."

He talks about the battered, thumb-bed books that tell you what courses you have to take to qualify as a machinist. He knows how many kids have asked the reference librarian where to find lists of New Jersey

Higher Than Anticipated Tax Bills Bring Groans In Township and Explanation from Committee

Troubled by your tax bill? Township taxpayers have been running straight from mailbox to telephone, asking representatives on Township Committee "What happened!"

Mayor Jay Bleiman explained mournfully Monday night at Township Committee that it was indeed bad. Originally pegged at $3.70 per $100 of assessed valuation for this year, the total tax rate is now $3.84. Last year's was $3.49 and that's an increase of 35 cents.

For the owner of a $40,000 house, this is $140 to "capture," as the mayor put it, in two tax quarters—$70 each for the August and November quarters.

The Township was hit by the state law phasing in, over a five-year period, the change in sharing school costs with the Borough from a per pupil basis to a tax rateables basis. Because this happened after the budget had been adopted and the tax rate certified, the Township couldn't legally dip into surplus to ease the blow.

Wait 'til next year, the mayor urged. With state aid coming back to the schools, there may be a decrease in 1977, "depending on what the schools do with state aid." Also, it might be possible next year to use that surplus.

West Windsor has decided to test in the courts the change in school financing. Princeton Township has contemplated this idea but has not yet reached a decision.

Mini-Bike Ban. After a traffic jam involving snowmobiles, snow-blowers, lawnmowers, mini-bikes, mopeds, trail bikes and even the family stationwagon, Committee decided to re-work its "Ban the mini-bike" ordinance and tune it up for introduction at next Monday's 7:30 meeting.

The point of the ordinance is to keep things like mini-bikes off the Township's open space lands and other municipal property. The north side of Community Park has been chewed by these vehicles said. Mayor Bleiman reported. On private property, a bike must have permission.

But the measure braked to a halt over definitions. If a mini-bike owner goes to a party and parks on the party-giver's lawn, is it a violation? What about snow-blowers? And does the ordinance really mean to include automobiles? Is it designed to curb football Saturday parking on the grass?

Elizabeth Hutter defended mini-bikes and their cousins as "a great boon" to many kids who are great at tinkering, but not so great at studies and get a valuable ego boost from working on the engines.

Josie Hall, commenting on the frequent protest that there isn't any place to ride, suggested parents and kids ask somebody with a lot of land for permission to use it. Committee did pass the ordinance prohibiting motorized bikes in the middle of the Shopping Center.

For $7,500, the Johnson Park bike path can be re-done and made rideable again and Committee passed the necessary ordinance, 2-1. Mrs. Hall was the objector. Committee members Margaret Broadwater and Abbot Low Moffat were on vacation.

The present overlay, experimental in nature, has failed. Mrs. Hall said new construction was expensive, and besides Johnson Park mothers fear the isolated path. She suggested waiting to see what the state's Rosedale Road bikeway is like before continuing with this one. Mrs. Hutter said she was voting to introduce the ordinance because she wanted the public response that will come at the August 2 public hearing.

the regional planning board which now occupies a closet-size office in Borough Hall, might move, too, the mayor said. Planning Board meetings could then be held in what was the library of the Valley Road building when it was a school.

Township officials have discussed this with the Borough, since Valley Road, as a school building, is partly the Borough's also. Mayor Bleiman said Borough officials don't want to incur costs from any part of Township usage, but other than that, are in agreement.

Committee agreed to change its meeting nights from Mondays to Thursdays after September 1 to accommodate Mrs. Broadwater. She will be teaching constitutional law in Rutgers' government department every Monday and Wednesday night. Details of the revised schedule will be worked out later.

Patrolman James Vandermark was presented with a certificate indicating the "pride of the community" in his recent victories at the Trenton Pistol Meet. In the first round, he achieved 250 out of 250, and in the second, 299 out of 300.

BOROUGH: "YES"
Township: "No." The Borough won, the Township lost, in the pre-application for Federal HUD block-grant money.

"Maybe they thought we were too rich," said Township Mayor Jay Bleiman Monday night, sighing in some resignation over rejection of the Township's application for $150,000 to build a community center for Princeton Community Village.

But in the Borough, officials are happily preparing final applications for $152,000 in HUD money to help buy the quarry site for a park.

"We're enormously delighted," beamed Council finance chairman Gus Escher.

Some time ago, the Borough also applied to the state for $137,500 in Green Acres money. That application has been swinging in the wind while the state decides how to implement a new rule about obtaining appraisals. If the application is approved and combined with the Federal $152,000, it would produce $289,500 and go a long way toward acquiring the park.

The formal appraisal has been about $275,000. Nobody in the Borough will confirm recent rumors of a new $500,000 appraisal for the quarry site.

Will Dinky Run?

"A routine mistake" on the part of Penn Central. That's the way Edwin Hutter characterized the announcement last week to Princeton's governing bodies that the dinky would be abandoned July 29.

Mr. Hutter, discussing the communication Monday night with Township Committee, said his "Save the Dinky" group met less than a month ago - June 21 -- with the state. Officials had repeated the fact of state purchase of the dinky line, and had encouraged Mr. Hutter's group to proceed with its exploration of ways to take it over from the state.

"The state was greatly surprised to learn of Penn Central's memo," Mr. Hutter continued, "they don't know why Penn Central wrote it, but assume they simply didn't realize the state had bought the line."

The state regards the memo as "of no consequence."

Move to Valley Road?
Should the Township move all its offices to the schools' Valley Road building? Rental cost for the 19,000 square feet required would be about $70,000 a year, calculated from the present $3.60 a square foot the Township pays the schools for the Recreation Department offices.

If the Township government moved out of Township Hall and the nearby annex, the police department could have the entire building. The upstairs meeting hall would remain a meeting hall. The police are cramped in present quarters and although they may not need the entire building, what's left over wouldn't be enough, according to Administrator Joseph R. Nini.

"The cleanest way is just to take over Valley Road from the schools, lease it for $1 a year, but not take ownership," Mayor Bleiman said, adding that the school board has already anticipated a Township take-over in its budget.

If the move does take place, beauty culture schools. He is painfully aware of the number of jobless men in the past couple of years who sat down at a table in the corner, surrounded by books on how to write a resume.

"Survival information," is the phrase used by Sue Rock, assistant director of the library.

"...and up to date information," Mr. Staples adds, "a man working on a resume wants to know who the personnel director of the company is NOW - not who it was in 1974. We have all that."

Children's use of the library is probably the most obvious to anybody who drops off to leave a book. For neighborhood children, who live only a block or two away, it's a cool place - by any definition of "cool" - to spend summer hours. Look at them, sprawled with a book in the bean-bag chair or, earphones secure, listening to sounds a million miles away. Mr. Staples smiles and wonders sometimes whether families don't use the library as an informal day-care center.

"The library is the victim of its own success," Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley once said, during budget hearings last winter.

"Staples is the luckiest thing that ever happened to us," Mr. Hammer says, with feeling.

"Italian Night." Although Princeton's live-wire librarian describes himself as a professional conservative, it is his programs and policies that attract so many to the library. The building is spacious and handsome, yes, and the location is perfect.

But neither, alone, would have drawn Italian families from all over town to last year's highly successful "Italian night" - just one of the 54 adult programs held in the library's upstairs meeting room.

More than 1,300 people have "gone to the movies" in that meeting room, and more than 110,000 have seen library movies in churches, schools, service clubs or at private parties in a friend's home. Movies are taken to the elderly residents of Lloyd Terrace, and there is a turnover book collection there, too, with lots of the library's big-print books.

Downstairs at the library, behind the catalog bank, is a six-chair table in the business corner.

Here, by the way, is where you'll find telephone directories from almost every city in the country.

Business men and women know this alcove. They know the library subscribes to all the Standard and Poor investment services, having expanded a gift originally made to the library by the Princeton Jaycees. Investment clubs and small investors who can't afford the subscription prices of the big investment services, use these materials at the library. Sometimes that table looks like the directors' table in a conference room.

And Upstairs... Upstairs, at the same time, kids are doing jig-saw puzzles and a man with earphones and a book is silently mouthing the new language he is learning.

"Men use our library all the time," Ms. Rock has observed, and Mr. Staples agrees. Librarians will tell you that most libraries are used by women. Housewives drop by during the day, mothers bring kids after school.

But in Princeton, there is that and more. You can see it at a glance, even in mid-morning: local businessmen in the commerce corner, retired men using the library daily as a club, working people - women and men - sitting in the periodical section reading during lunch hour and, of course, fathers and kids on Saturday.

Men are well aware of the services. One man, who has worked for years with prison inmates, takes 16mm. films from the library to show in prison. On the other side of the law, a local man used a library typewriter to compose a plea for clemency to the magistrate about to sentence him.

Typewriters, by the way, were bought with a gift from Princeton University's Class of 1970. Vocational books were also purchased with that $1,000 present.

A Third Floor? What would expansion mean?

In the first place, the building was constructed with a third floor in mind, so the addition of another story would not be so complicated as it might seem. Then, the south wall of the children's department would be moved out 14 feet at a cost of two spaces in the municipal parking lot.

The library needs more private study room in this area for kids who come in with tutors - there are a lot of these. Expansion would also provide a children's meeting room for story hours, workshop projects and so on. It's cumbersome, librarians find, to move a big troop of little kids from the children's department up those spiral stairs to the main meeting room. And children's librarian Dudley Carlson would have more shelf-space.

"This library was built just before technology hit the libraries," Mr. Staples explains!

There isn't space to inspect and process the 16mm. films that circulate so heavily - a circulation of 3,000 a year; 230 in the month of June alone. (Therese Critchlow, who runs audio-visual for the library, will help you pick one out to show your church discussion-group.)

Also, tape cassette players from which people learn languages or listen to stories, and film-strip machines need maintenance and repair. So many people are using these now, that the library doesn't have enough "listening stations."

Because there is no basement, there is no storage space - for Easter books in July, multiple-copies not at the moment in demand. The custodian's work-and-repair space is in the heating and ventilating room and things like toilet paper and carpenter's supplies are stored there, too.

"Thad Longstreth designed this building with such a feeling of space that you aren't aware of the crowding," Mr. Staples says with some wistfulness.

The meeting room on the second floor is booked solid. "Townpeople" under Rick Endersby, meet there to talk about Old Princeton. The League of Women Voters' study groups gather - and use library reference books. It's the town's only public meeting space.

"Yes, but....." say municipal officials.

Dollar Squeeze. "We can't even put a dollar figure on sewer costs," Mr. Escher says, "and what, exactly, will the five-year phase-in of school costs mean to the Borough? We're certain to have a continuing increase in the county tax."

"What's going FOR it -- expansion -- is that construction costs are now in a holding pattern, and it would be nice to entertain a big public works program right now. Inflation, too, would hit the library's plans a lot harder than, say, if we bought a fire-truck."

"But you know," Mr. Escher continues, "it's in the nature of institutions to operate beyond capacity. The library is just short of its 100,000 books. I've heard a lot of people say, well, let them move partitions, get rid of some things, squeeze a little bit, wait until they just can't MOVE in there."

"But this coming meeting could change these thoughts. I'd say it's a relative decision - where is library priority in terms of other things that will happen?"

Unlike such projects as bike paths - or even sewers - the library has no access to Federal money. Mr. Staples has heard of a $1 million library fund proposed by the state, but it would apply to the entire state, and "rich Princeton" couldn't expect much, he fears.

There is already some state aid - $25,000 a year - but it isn't for construction. That would have to come through a local bond issue, the way the present building was funded in the 1960s.

Money from Friends. What about money from the Friends of the Public Library?

This private organization, with a membership of around 1,000, buys extras for the library. They gave $5,000 for audio-visual equipment when the new building was finished. They gave an equal amount for the coin-operated photocopiers - which run a nice profit, by the way: in the month of May, 12,000 copies were made by library users. They have provided the pictures and sculpture that you can take out, just like a library book. They finance professional trips for the staff.

Mrs. Gordon Griffin, current president of the Friends, feels strongly that Friends' money should not be considered as operating expense money.

"The problem is, officials sometimes say 'Let the Friends do it' but that's not what they're for," Mr. Hammer explains.

So the library is preparing its case for the public. Mr. Staples is talking about detailed drawings next year with construction starting in '78. Ms. Rock points out that, at best, it would be about five years from now before the library actually had the additional space ready for the people to use.

After Various Protests and 4-0 Council Vote, Avalon Place To Be Renamed for Paul Robeson

Faint echoes of the 1950s sounded in Borough Hall Thursday night as Council listened to reasons why Avalon Place should-- or should not-- be re-named Paul Robeson Place, in honor of the singer-athlete-scholar-activist who was born in Princeton.

After hearing denunciations of Russia and various speakers who said "I'm not against Paul Robeson, but....", Council voted 4-0 to make the change, member Joseph P. Moore absent.

The most telling reason for choosing Avalon as the street to name for Robeson came from Walton Johnson, head of the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation, formed to deal with housing problems in the area.

Mr. Johnson reminded old-timers and explained to newcomers that Avalon, a relatively new street dating only from the 1960s, and the Wiggins extension, swallowed up the former Jackson Street, which used to run alongside the present Youth Center, the rear fences of properties fronting on Green, and the First Baptist Church.

The street is important in the memories of black Princeton residents, Mr. Johnson said, symbolizing the extent to which the black community was pushed back from Nassau. To rename Avalon for Paul Robeson, therefore, would be appropriate.

However, Avalon Place only extends from Bayard Lane to the Chambers intersection. Under the name change, the section from Chambers to Witherspoon, alongside the church and the Youth Center, formerly known as Jackson, will still be Wiggins.

Van Dyke Home. Frank Clark, general secretary of the YMCA and speaking for its board, pointed out that "Avalon" was the name of the Henry Van Dyke mansion, razed to build the present "Y". The name honors the Van Dyke family, which was important in Princeton, Mr. Clark said, and should be retained.

But "Avalon" was the name of a house, not a person, replied Joe Brown, and changing the name of the street wouldn't detract from community respect for the Van Dykes.

Several speakers talked about the Van Dyke family and lamented the loss, in terms of local history, if Avalon Place were erased from street signs. A petition of some 40 names, opposing the change, was presented to Council.

TOPICS Of The Town

"Robeson was a man of towering strength -- to name a street after him is inappropriate," was the tart observation of James Sayen, 108 Mercer, "I suggest naming the Community Park sports complex for him. It has greater scale, as befits the spirit of a great man."

But Robeson's spirit was not praised by all. Arthur A. Diringer, 9 Pine, spoke at length of Soviet repression under Stalin and Robeson's affinity for the Soviet Union. Robeson's politics, more than his blackness, were the undercurrent of the hearing, although Clarence di Donato said Robeson was a symbol of the struggles of the black and the poor, and John Bailey referred to the fact that black children of Robeson's day were not allowed to attend Princeton High, and Woodrow Wilson had advised Robeson against applying to Princeton University.

Toward the end of the hearing, Mr. Bailey asked members of the group assigned to name something for Robeson, to hold a brief caucus out in the hall. But they still held out for changing Avalon when they came back in, and after the state approves, that's the way it will be.

Incidentally, as Robert Hosford reminded Council, there is a Van Dyke Road. But it's in the Township.

Loading Zones on Bank. In other action, Council passed the ordinance setting up loading zones on Bank Street so residents can unload cars. It's an experimental "first" for Princeton: other loading zones are for trucks. Martin Lombardo, a Bank Street resident, abstained in the vote.

Council also finally laid down the lines for bike paths:

The east side of Bayard Lane only, from Avalon-- or Paul Robeson Place-- to Leigh Avenue. There will be no bike paths at all on the west side. Council member Nelson van den Blink announced that the University will give the necessary three feet from its "Stanworth" property to make the present four-foot walk into a seven-foot path.

The other bike paths, to be built with the Borough's $50,000 Federal grant, will be on the north side of Stockton from the Borough line to Library Place, and on both sides of Prospect, using the present four-foot walk, but making curb-cuts as needed.

Henry Arnold, Princeton's cycle king, pronounced four feet too narrow for a bike path. He proposed, for Bayard Lane, a one-way lane on the west wide going south, toward Nassau, built in the roadway and separated from traffic by a barrier. One-way north, would be on the east side.

$48,000 More Needed. Council then agreed to apply for $48,000 more in Federal money for a path on Elm between Westerly and Cleveland Lane, and on Lovers Lane between Marquand Park and Mercer Road.

These paths, Mrs. van den Blink said, would help solve the "hazardous routes" problem of Borough school children.

Money would also be used to modify traffic signals at Hamilton and Harrison and Wiggins and Witherspoon to accommodate cyclists.

By Labor Day, Mrs. van den Blink announced happily, residents with no driveways will be allowed to park in the 27 spaces to be made available by Princeton Theological Seminary in the oval that used to be in front of the old Borough Hall on Stockton.

Charles Cornforth, chairman of the committee studying consolidation, urged Council not to reevaluate Borough properties until it can do so with the Township. When two communities share school costs on the ratables basis, he said, everyone must be satisfied it's being done equitably.

TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part or all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships and Griggstown. At all newsstands, including TOWN TOPICS' office, it costs 20 cents.

ZONING AGENDA
Borough Board to Meet. Princeton University will ask the Borough Zoning Board next week for permission to convert its single-family house at 99 Alexander -- next to Princeton Inn College -- to a combination dormitory and residence. The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. next Thursday, July 22, in Borough Hall.

The University would like to house seven students on the second floor and use the first floor as a residence. Bulk variances and a conditional use authorization are required.

The board will also consider a problem on Pine Street in which, apparently through an error in surveying, a property line hits the corner of an adjoining house. The two houses are those of Mark Davies at 64 Pine and Mitsuru Yasuhara at 66. In the original subdivision, the properties of Douglas Calbaugh and Bernard Miller were also involved. The Zoning Board will be asked for bulk variances and eventually the Princeton Regional Planning Board will have to work on subdivision.

Martin P. Lombardo, 16 Bank, will ask permission to create an off-street parking slot by using his own side yard and that of the yard at 14 Bank. The neighboring house is owned by Princeton University which has given approval to the project.

Mrs. Everett P. Garretson, owner of 14 Edgehill, will ask for a minor exception for a minor addition at the rear of the property.

RENT INCREASES
How to Calculate. Reversing a decision of the Borough Rent Levelling Board, Borough Council decided Thursday night that it was fairer, in allowing hardship rent increases, to calculate a landlord's maintenance costs over a three-to-five-year period, instead of considering only the previous year. The appeal was taken to Council by Arlo and Doreen Duba, who own 29-31 Jefferson Road. They applied for a hardship increase and the board heard their case May 17, taking into account -- among other factors -- the Dubas' maintenance costs for last year. Believing they were

By the time the Democratic delegates wrap up their convention in New York's Madison Square Garden on Thursday, they will have been treated to at least cooler if not the nicest weather this area has to offer.

Tuesday and Wednesday's cool and cloudy weather, will be followed by fair, dry and generally pleasant conditions through to Saturday. The weekend outlook calls for warmer temperatures, which will also bring back the chance of showers.

eligible for more, the Dubas went before Council, pointing out that a landlord's expenses rarely fall at regular intervals.

Council allowed, in the Dubas' case, an averaging over a four-year period, but suggested that the rent leveling ordinance should be amended to require a three-to-five year averaging.

For 29 Jefferson, the rent board had granted an increase from $303.62 to $337.19. Council increased that rent to $405.61. The increase for 31 Jefferson allowed by the board was from

THIS IS NASSAU STREET? No, no--it's Nassau PLACE, and it's the site of a new street in Claremont, California, which has been named as a gesture of friendship to Princeton, N.J. Claremont and Princeton have been engaged in cultural exchanges during this Bicentennial year and David Lidz of Princeton, exchange student to Claremont, surveys Nassau Place from beneath his hard hat. He's with William Dunseth, vice-president of Pomona College in Claremont and chairman of the Princeton committee for the Bicentennial celebration; Claremont Mayor Bertie Smith and, far right, Hank Maxwell, chairman of the Claremont Bicentennial committee. Rotary Clubs from the two cities worked out the student exchange. Young Lidz returned to Princeton last month.

$303.62 to $337.26. Council increased that to $421.68.

It was pointed out at the hearing that it works two ways: limiting maintenance calculations to one year could be damaging -- or advantageous -- to either tenant- or landlord.

$2,500 IN PIPES STOLEN

From Church Organ. A huge pipe organ left in the main portion of Trinity Church that had been sold to someone in California was out of tune this week.

A member of the church called police Friday to report that two sets of organ pipes totalling 293 and ranging from two feet to pencil size had been stolen. The tin pipes were valued at $2500.

Police report that the organ was to have been dismantled later this month. They placed the theft between March and June 23.

The first theft of a Moped, a combination motorcycle-bicycle, in the Borough was reported last week by a Plainsboro resident. He told police that his $500 yellow Motobecane Moped was stolen between 2 and 3 in the morning while it was parked in front of the Pink Elephant on Nassau Street. Police said it was not locked.

As usual, bicycles were not overlooked by thieves, either. Three were stolen last week between 3 and 6 p.m. from the bicycle rack in front of the public library.

One, a 10-speed green Raleigh valued at $125 and owned by a Township resident, had its lock cut. A 3-speed gold Armstrong model valued at $50 was unlocked.

Police said that a bolt cutter had been used to sever the lock of the third bike, a blue, Raleigh 10-speed valued at $200. It was owned by a Borough resident.

Wallet Snatched. A clerk in the Earth Shoe store at 20 Nassau told police Friday that after she had placed her pocketbook on a counter next to the cash register, someone had removed her wallet containing $27. It was later recovered on Bank Street, minus the money, and turned over to the police.

Monday night, a Nassau Street resident left her pocketbook near a rear door, allowing a sneak thief to snatch it between 11:30 and midnight. The purse was found the next morning on Hawthorne Avenue. Missing were $6 and credit cards.

Another week, another list of victims of citizen band radio thefts. Two took place in the Borough, one in the Township.

A Skillman resident lost a $130 CB and an 8-track tape deck ($190) Monday when someone forced a vent window on his pickup truck while it was parked in the lot next to the Princeton Playhouse. Time of the theft: between 12:45 and 2:15 p.m.

Taken Friday from a car parked in the Park Place lot was a CB valued at $240. Police said that the victim, a Princeton resident, had left the window on the driver's side open about one inch -- enough to allow a wire to be slipped inside and open the door.

In the Township, a 23 channel CB valued at $125 was removed from the pickup truck of Michael Stachowicz, 277 Walnut Lane, while it was parked in front of the victim's house. Mr. Stachowicz discovered the loss in the morning. A side vent window had been forced, police said.

One night last week, a thief jacked up a 1976 Chrysler parked in a lot at Nini Chrysler-Plymouth, Route 206, and removed two tires and wheels with a combined value of $231.92.

The quickness in which a theft can occur is illustrated in a report by Dolores Hoelle, 19 University Place. She parked her car near Lot 20 off Faculty Road last week to pick some squash from the nearby Princeton University family garden plots.

Ms. Hoelle told police that she was gone only five minutes but when she returned she discovered her shoulder bag which she had

Multiple Sewer Plant Plan Gets Consideration As "Most Feasible Alternative" for This Area

A multiple sewer plant plan, described by its author and sponsors as "the most feasible alternative" to the single-plant "Plan A" of the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, is now under consideration by the Authority and the state's Department of Environmental Protection.

After public meetings on the proposal, there will be a decision early in September.

The plan, sometimes known as "Plan X" was prepared at the request of the state by William Whipple Jr., of Rutgers' Water Resources Research Institute. He worked with Adelle Mitchell, director of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association; Thomas O'Neill, Pennington Council member and Sam Hamil, director of the Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Study Council.

The Whipple plan emphasizes flexibility -- defined as different kinds of solutions for different parts of the Authority's area.

Princeton Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that the plan "pretty conclusively" meets objections of environmentalists to Plan A, and is apparently acceptable to Hopewell Township which has, so far, objected to the Authority's plan to lay sewer lines in the township. Downstream communities like Princeton are afraid that Hopewell Township will eventually be required to have those sewer lines anyway, at costs much higher than present ones.

Highlights of the Whipple proposals:

- Three plants: the one now under construction on River Road in Princeton, plus one downstream from Pennington on Stony Brook, serving Pennington and parts of Hopewell Township, and a third near Hopewell Borough.

- The two smaller plants would be designed for 20-year growth. The Pennington plant would start with 325,000 gallons per day capacity, scheduled to grow to 530,000; the Hopewell Borough plant would be designed for 260,000, to expand to 471,000.

- Hopewell Township would be served by septic tanks. Pumpings would be treated at any of the three plants.

- Schools in Hopewell Township that are near Pennington, would connect into the Pennington system, and so would other areas near the two proposed plants.

- Two package plants at Pretty Brook in Princeton and Princeton Farms in Hopewell Township, would be owned and operated by the Authority.

- Upstream communities -- Hopewell Township, Hopewell Borough and Pennington -- would adopt land-use and zoning laws "appropriate" to the phased-growth basis of this plan.

- Plan A's Stony Brook interceptor would be eliminated, except for the part between Harrison Street and Alexander Road, which would be needed for part of West Windsor's needs, and major flows from Princeton.

How Much? So far, there are no cost estimates. The Authority's consultants will do that job, Mayor Cawley said.

The mayor said he had three concerns about the proposal.

"It's not capital costs so much as operating costs," he said, "and I wonder whether Stony Brook can support the expansion of that Pennington plant. Also, small package plants have a reputation for not being very reliable, chiefly because it costs so much to have somebody monitoring them all the time. And I wonder about the quality of water in their effluent."

Princeton Borough, the mayor said, is still waiting for approval of its request for sewer rehabilitation funds. The hold-up, he said, is whether the Authority or the Princeton Sewer Operating Committee is to be the contracting agent.

"It's the Department of Environmental Protection's decision, and at the moment, it's murky," the mayor said.

The Authority has admitted its seventh member -- South Brunswick Township, expected to be a heavy user of the River Road plant. The other six are the two Princetons, the two Hopewell's, Pennington and West Wind-sors.

THREE ARE CHARGED

In Marijuana Arrest. Two men and a 17-year old Township girl have been charged with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana following their arrest Saturday night on Nassau Green on the university campus.

Issued complaint summonses by Det. Timothy Huizing charging them with possession were Robert Petras, 20, of River Road, and Wiley Critz, 25, of Neshanic Station. They are scheduled to appear in Borough Court on Wednesday.

In addition, Petras and the juvenile were charged with use of marijuana. Det. Huizing, head of the police department's narcotic squad, responded to an 8:35 call from university proctors that they had the three suspects in custody.

EMPLOYEE ASSAULTED

In Public Library. An employee of the Public Library was assaulted late Monday afternoon by three men who, police said, struck him about the face and body.

The victim, a Princeton resident, did not require any medical treatment. Police added that he did not know any of his assailants.

According to Chief Michael Carnevale, the victim noticed the three who, allegedly, kept staring at him. When he went over and asked if there was anything he could do for them, they assaulted him and walked out. Police, who did not receive a report of the incident until four hours after it happened, are continuing the investigation.

YOUTH IS CAUGHT

After Purse Theft. A 16-year old East Brunswick youth faces juvenile court action after he was arrested last week by Borough police and charged with larceny.

The youth, who has been released to the custody of his mother, allegedly stole a purse from a Trinity Church office last Wednesday afternoon. He is alleged to have taken $13.45 from a wallet inside the purse. Both the wallet and purse were recovered in the rear of an Alexander Street home.

Police received a call at 2:52 p.m. from the church office reporting the theft and adding the suspect was running south on Alexander Street. The drivers of four patrol cars -- Capt. Theodore Lewis, Sgt. Thomas Procaccino, Det. Ronald Holliday and Ptl. Victor Fasanella -- supplied with a description converged on the area.

Det. Holliday first observed the suspect running behind McCarter Theater. When the suspect saw the officer, he doubled back toward College Road where he was apprehended in the rear of an Alexander Street home by Ptl. Fasanella.

Police said that the victim of the theft made a positive identification of the suspect.

commented Chief Frederick Porter this week after he described how members of his department arrested a burglar suspect last week in the driveway of the home of Peter A. Bordes, 250 Mercer Road.

Leon Claitt, 33, of Bordentown was arrested at 10:20 last Wednesday evening — 18 minutes after a silent alarm connected to police headquarters sounded. Charged with breaking and entering, Claitt has been released in $1,000 bail, pending his appearance in Township court.

Police said that entry had been gained by cutting a screen and raising a front window. Officers responding to the alarm were Det. Frank Boccanfuso, Ptl. William Potts and Ptl. Peter Savalli, assisted by Lt. John Bellow and Det. Charles Harris of the Borough department.

Less fortunate were the owners of other Township homes.

Chief Frederick Porter reported that a $550 color television set was stolen between 6 and 9 Saturday evening from the home of Brian Sullivan, 392 Mount Lucas Road. A screen had been cut to open a side window.

An undetermined amount of cash was stolen early last week from the bedroom of Maria Darezze, 910 Cherry Valley Road. Entry, police said, was through an unlocked door.

Despite two dogs inside, an intruder last week broke a panel window to reach in and unlock an adjacent side door to enter the home of Donald B. Craig, 537 Stockton Street. Police said that it doesn't appear as if anything was touched.

A rear storm door and interior door were forced to enter a house at 278 Mountain Avenue last week, but police report that it was vacant and nothing was taken.

A sliding glass door was forced Sunday to enter the apartment of Ruth Dille, 25 Red Oak Row in the Princeton Community Village.

Police report finding a small television set and portable radio placed on the floor "ready to go." The intruder must have been frightened away, however, before he could escape with the loot, police said. Ptl. Howard Sweeney investigated.

PRINCETON WOMAN DIES
In Boating Accident. Mrs. Edith Peters Raser, 46, of 362 Dodds Lane, died July 10 in a collision of two boats on Lake Wallenpaupak, Pa.

Five other persons were injured, including Mrs. Florence Mooney of 317 Dodds Lane, who was operating the boat in which Mrs. Raser was a passenger, according to Pennsylvania State Police.

The accident occurred about 11 p.m. on the Wayne County side of the lake. The operator of the other boat was identified as Robert J. Zvonchenko, 19, of Scranton, Pa. He and four passengers in his craft were treated at the hospital and released.

Both boats sank after the crash. The occupants were rescued by a Waterways Patrol Boat which was nearby at the time of the collision. Rescuers heard the crash but did not witness it.

Mrs. Raser was pronounced dead on arrival at the Wayne Memorial Hospital in Honesdale, Pa. Mrs. Mooney suffered minor injuries.

Born in Philadelphia, Mrs. Raser lived in Princeton for the past 13 years. She was a graduate of Frankford High School in Philadelphia and the University of Pennsylvania, class of 1952, where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She worked as a legal secretary in the office of the secretary of Princeton University.

She was a member of the Steering Committee of the Princeton Medical Center Fete and was co-chairman of the Fete in 1974. Mrs. Raser was a member of the College Club of Princeton and the Dogwood Garden Club as well as of the Nassau Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Raser is survived by her husband, Thomas J. Raser III; a son, Jeffrey W., 15; a daughter, Susan Lynn, 12; and her father, W. Roland Peters of Rydal, Pa.

The service was held at the Nassau Presbyterian Church with private burial in Sunset Memorial Park, Somerton, Pa. Contributions in her memory may be made to the Princeton Medical Center. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

NO WORD AS YET

On Amount of School Aid. No official word from the state about school money for Princeton — or any other district — in light of passage of a New Jersey state income tax last Friday and the subsequent lifting of the injunction that closed public schools in Princeton and elsewhere from July 1.

Ronald Novak, business administrator for Princeton, says if Princeton gets full state aid, it will be $700,000, from information he's been able to glean. However, he had expected more than $800,000, he said.

If Princeton gets full state aid, Mr. Novak continued, he would recommend dropping the school's appeal from the final budget figure set by Borough Council and Township Committee after the budget's defeat last March.

Mr. Novak spoke of a proposal now before the legislature which would give aid only to districts that had included state aid in their budgets. Princeton did include $259,000 worth of state aid — but only after the budget's defeat in the March election.

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said Tuesday that he's asked municipal attorney Gordon Griffin to find out what happens now to the defeated budget, the municipal resolutions setting a budget figure and the school board's appeal of those resolutions.

Meanwhile, the school board is preparing a list of consultants who might be retained to help select a successor to former superintendent Philip E. McPherson; the board has a report on ways other districts have chosen superintendents, and board members are interviewing for the job of Acting Superintendent.

Reorganization Report. At a planning meeting Tuesday night, the board heard more details from the report by consultant Arthur G. Martin on ways Princeton might reorganize its school administration.

Amplifying and at the same time highlighting his June 22 report, Mr. Martin made the following recommendations to the board:

- Pick a top person as Acting Superintendent, he or she may have the job as long as a year before the superintendent is chosen.
- In choosing for any "Acting" role, remember that if you pick somebody from the system, the time served as "acting" counts toward tenure in the job, so if you decide to select that person permanently, you have less time for evaluation before you're forced to grant tenure, and if you don't choose that person, you cause disappointment and loss of face.

- Princeton needs in-service training for its teachers and curriculum development.

- The community must be "turned around" about accepting budgets.

- Re-organize the administration as soon as possible, but leave openings so the new superintendent can make choices, too. Princeton needs to do much more "To improve the quality of this good school system," particularly in operation of the high school and middle school, in curriculum development and in implementing the state's thorough-and-efficient requirements.

- There is no need for a personnel director.

- Curriculum development is a four-year job; nothing has been done, really, since 1968.

- Start surveys of: Student Services (over-staffed); Business Office (could be savings); high school guidance (can save $15,000); assistant principal's function in the middle school

- Consider shifting the teacher-student ratio from 1:14 to 1:15. The saving would be $150,000 and quality would be retained. "Someone has to challenge the high school in terms of low student-teacher ratios."

- Principals and teachers from each school should set curriculum working from priorities set by a Curriculum Council.

Paying fines of $30 each were Itidecki Omiya, the Graduate College, failure to yield right of way at intersection; Charles R. John R. Waltman, 36 Duffield Place, was fined $35 for allowing his dog to molest a person and $25 for allowing his dog on private property without the owner's consent.

$1040 IS STOLEN

Two-Thirds Recovered. Two-thirds of $1040 stolen in travelers checks from a Princeton home last week have been recovered by the Trenton police.

Trenton police have charged Robin E. Smith, 29 Clay

Street, with possession of stolen property, after she was arrested Thursday in Trenton where she allegedly attempted to cash a check stolen the previous day from the home of Martha A. Kotter, 63 Leigh Avenue. All but $350 of the $1040 was recovered.

According to Borough police, Mrs. Kotter and her husband were in their home around 10:20 in the evening when they heard a noise. They saw a man run out the front door with Mrs. Kotter's handbag which she had left on the floor in a front room.

The suspect was described as black, in his early 20s, 5-10 to 6-0, slim, with short hair and wearing a pink or red jump suit. He has not been apprehended.

The investigation is being continued by Det. Frank Boccanfusa and Ptl. Anthony Gaylard of the Township police.

BULLDOZERS BLOCKED

By Township Officials.

"They shall not pass!" Wrong battlefield, but it will do, anyway.

A brave little band of Princeton officials gathered on Mercer Road at the entrance to Princeton Battlefield Park in the early morning mists Tuesday like some ghostly rear guard of Washington's army.

Mission: stop the troops coming up from Trenton.

The day before, battlefield reconnaissance had revealed state of New Jersey stakes marking the new access road which will lead, when built, to the Clarke House at the brow of the hill. The stakes, in wild disregard of the agreed-on plan, were 75 to 100 feet away from the place where the battlefield map showed they ought to be. They were, in fact, directly across from Parkside Drive.

Construction of a road following those stakes would mean a wound bigger than General Mercer's, right across the green battlefield grass.

Horrified, Richard Baker, president of the Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society, sounded the alarm. The plan, drawn up by landscape architects Zion and Breen, for a driveway up to the Clarke House, had been carefully designed to minimize damage to the sweep of the battlefield. Everyone thought the state, Princeton Township, the Princeton Regional Planning Board, the Battlefield Society et al, were in agreement.

"This is perfectly ghastly," Mr. Baker declared to Township Committee Monday night, "it will spoil the battlefield beyond belief."

There was some talk about trying to reach state officials Monday night but most of them have unlisted home telephones. It had to be 8 a.m. Tuesday, when the bulldozers were scheduled to begin.

Mayor Jay Bleiman, Administrator Joseph R. Nini, Engineer Joseph Hadak, Committee member Josie Hall, Planning Board member Margen Penick, Harold Breen of the landscape firm, Police Chief Fred Porter and Police Lt. Michael Lisi and Mr. Baker's wife, Rachel, were there, ready.

All they found were three men from the Bureau of Parks, mildly astonished. No bulldozers at all.

Bureaucratic Bumbling. The Parks men said, well, it was like that in the affairs of state, sometimes. Following the usual inexplicable bureaucratic labyrinth, the plans had ended up with the Department of Transportation, because they're the ones who build roads. Presumably, they regarded a nice clean intersection with Parkside as better than the original plan, but that was only a surmise.

Parks men were on hand, they said, because the DOT - or somebody - hadn't set out enough of the hated stakes and the contractor couldn't do anything until the arrangement was corrected.

Mayor Bleiman heard with dismay that the DOT planned a 24-foot road - six feet wider, even, than Mercer - and he convinced the Parks men that they should try and talk the DOT down to 18 feet. The men agreed. They also agreed to try and make sure the road hews to the line of trees and does not gouge up the battlefield any more than it has to.

All this will take a considerable part of the Bicentennial year, of course. A change in the DOT's new plans will mean new bids, new contracts, etc., etc.

Before this truce was reached, by the way, Police Chief Porter and his lieutenant had left the battlefield. They had come in the patrol car to stop that bulldozer. There wasn't any bulldozer. So they went back to barracks.

No casualties.

Originated With Landau's. A way to say "thank-you" to the community originally provided the impetus three years ago for the senior citizens' picnic, which is sponsored by Landau's under the aegis of the Joint Commission on Aging and has become an annual event.

As Robert Landau explained, "We were looking for a nice way to do something to show our appreciation. We wanted something to have the most impact and to benefit the most number of people. That first year we tossed ideas around and decided that senior citizens and the hospital were two good possibilities.

"We planned a summer event because there are few activities for seniors then. The idea for the picnic developed, along with the rummage sale at the end of the summer to finance the picnic, with the remainder going to the hospital."

From an initial committee of three, Robert Landau, Ruth Cherniss and Jocelyn Helm, the group last year enlarged to include Denise King, Matty Maxwell and Dorothy J. Kruger. This year, the concept has expanded to community-wide involvement with civic, service, social and religious groups adding ideas and talent.

Recalling the first picnic, Ruth Cherniss remembered, "The weather was fine, everyone had a good time and the caterer was extraordinarily efficient." Last year's coordinator, Jocelyn Helm, added, "Things were kind of hectic. We had a larger group and not really enough people working behind the scenes to tie up all the loose ends."

In 1974, the picnic hosted 125 seniors; last year, 301; this year, the anticipated attendance is over 450. "We will finance it totally this year," Mr. Landau promised, "and the rummage sale profits will go to the hospital."

The picnic will be held at Prospect from 4 to 7. Reservations are being taken by the Senior Resource Center, Red Cross and Princeton Recreation Dept.

RECRUITER TO VISIT
For VISTA and Peace Corps. George T. Neary, a representative of ACTION, the New York based recruiting office for the Peace Corps and VISTA, will be at the Nassau Inn Monday and Tuesday, August 2 and 3.

Mr. Neary is a former Peace Corps volunteer in the West Indies, and he is seeking volunteers for VISTA Peace Corps programs starting in September through December. Specifically, he is looking for skilled trades people, business people, home economists, teachers and nurses, but the need is urgent, and he stresses that everyone is welcome to come talk to him.

A press release that accompanied the announcement of Mr. Neary's visit made the point that the Peace Corps has changed for the better since the idealistic days of the sixties. Then, it points out, the supply of volunteers was unlimited, and before the sixties ended, a time when it was widely believed that people can change things, more than 40,000 Americans, most of them young white and

REMEMBER APPAMATOX?

Will Towns Secede? They weren't just kidding in Hopewell, Pennington and Hopewell Township when they began to talk about seceding from Mercer County and joining Hunterdon.

Last Wednesday, Hopewell's Borough Council voted 5-1 to join a Hopewell Valley committee to study secession. Pennington's Borough Council had already done so, and Hopewell Township, where the idea began, is expected to appoint a member to the study committee this week.

Hopewell Township officials, led by Committeeman Christopher Bannister, says Mercer County officials overlook the Hopewell Valley because its communities are a rural minority. Mr. Bannister thinks Hopewell Valley can do better, in terms of services, with Hunterdon.

Mr. Bannister has been quoted as saying that when he telephoned Freeholder Gilbert Lugossy about road problems in Hopewell Township, he was told that the Hopewell Valley doesn't elect freeholders.

The "no" vote in Hopewell Borough came from Caun-college educated, had joined the Peace Corps.

Changes came, and the Peace Corps, according to this brochure, "had to learn that people in far away lands know more about what they need than we do." Today the Peace Corps is in 60 countries and responds to very specific requests for help such as an electrician, two city planners, five math teachers, an experienced farmer. ### MEETING IS MONDAY

For La Leche League. The Princeton area La Leche League will hold the first meeting of its current series, "The Advantages of Breastfeeding," on Monday at 8. All interested persons (including husbands and babies) are welcome.

The meeting will be led by Carolyn Treadway and held in her West Windsor home. Call 799-2849 for directions.

La Leche League is an international voluntary organization offering practical advice and encouragement in breastfeeding. In informal discussion meetings, pregnant women and couples are encouraged to learn about breastfeeding and ways to prepare for their coming baby. La Leche League holds meetings once a month, has a free lending library and 24-hour breastfeeding counseling service.

INSTRUMENTS SOUGHT

By Windsor Lions For Blind. The West Windsor Lions Club are soliciting musical instruments of all types for the benefit of a group of blind citizens who are interested in music.

Noting that there is a band in New Jersey that is composed of all blind people, the Lions, which has had a tradition of assisting the blind, plans to present the instruments to encourage one pastime that can be relatively easily mastered.

John Neiner, the Lions Club sight chairman and a former trainer of seeing eye dogs, comments that although the blind band players may look helpless being led onto a stage for a performance, once the band begins playing the sounds are outstanding.

It is the Lions desire to encourage other blind people of all ages to develop the love of music and the playing of an instrument by supplying them with various musical instruments. If anyone has one to donate, call John Neiner at 452-9077.

To date, The West Windsor Lions Club has donated $1,200 to 10 blind organizations in the New Jersey area. These include a hospital deeply involved in eye research; an organization that supervises eye transplants; a camp for blind children; a home for blind aged people; the blind musicians band and a hospital that specializes in treatment of eyes. The Lions also saw to it that a needy area youth received an eye examination and the necessary glasses.

TENNIS CLINIC PLANNED

At Mercer Community College. A young people's Tennis Clinic will be offered at Mercer County Community College beginning the week of July 19 through Friday, August 13.

Classes will meet twice weekly for 75 minutes per session with playing time of at least 45 minutes available after each class. During inclement weather classes will be held in the college's gymnasium.

The clinic is divided into four sections: girls 4th-6th grade, Wednesday and Friday 9-10:15; girls 7th-12th grade, Wednesday and Friday, 11-12:15; boys 4th-6th grade, Wednesday and Friday 1-2:15; and boys 7th-12th grade, Tuesday and Thursday, 1-2:15.

Stan Dlugosz, head coach of the MCCC varsity tennis team, and members of the team will serve as instructors for the clinic. There will be no more than 8 students per instructor. Students must supply their own rackets, sneakers and a new can of tennis balls.

Cost for the four-week clinic is $28 which includes a workbook for self-paced instruction. Further information may be obtained by calling the MCCC office of part-time study at 586-4800, extension 229.

"REACT" TEAM FORMED

By CB Radio Operators. Ever run out of gas when driving late at night? Or experience a flat tire on a quiet country road? Or get involved in an auto accident in which several passengers require immediate medical attention?

Starting August 1, the chances of receiving speedy attention have been significantly increased. That's because the Tri-County React Team, comprised of local operators of mobile and base Citizen Band Radio are going to be looking out for community residents as they travel along. If they find people in distress, they're going to use their transceivers to alert the police, or fire department, or whatever agency may be needed.

The CB operators will supply their know-how and equipment through the newly formed local Tri-County REACT team. Like 40,000 other REACT participants organized into 1,000 teams throughout the U.S. and Canada, the teams will serve on a volunteer basis.

Coordinating the effort will be Joseph Petrozzini and Charles McWilliams. There will be a regular meeting of this REACT organization on Thursday, July 11 at 8 at the Kingston Firehouse. Anyone interested in joining Tri-County REACT is invited to attend this meeting.

Information may be obtained from Mr. McWilliams at 924-0441 or Mr. Petrozzini at 924-4204.

JAZZ TRIP OFFERED

To Senior Citizens. The Princeton Recreation Department is sponsoring a free trip for senior citizens to the Garden State Arts Center on July 30th to see the "Preservation Hall Jazz Band."

You only have until August 1 to submit the pictures you've taken of Princeton to the "This is Princeton" exhibit, sponsored by the Arts Council, the Historical Society and the Bicentennial Committee. The best 100 will be hung in Borough Hall in October.

Amateurs and professionals are both eligible. Pictures must have been taken in Princeton during the 1970s. They can be people, places, weather, events. The point is to show future generations what it was like in Princeton during the first half of the '70s, so things like skateboards and shopping carts are as important as Significant Events.

REGIONAL PLANNING?

New Law Could Affect. Princeton's regional planning board could be dissolved if either municipality wishes, under terms of the new land use law that goes into effect August 1.

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cowley acknowledged at his press conference this week that the question of a regional board or a separate board will be discussed by Council when officials begin to implement the new law.

Municipalities throughout the state have six months to get their ordinances, codes and administrative procedures into shape, and both Mayor Cowley and Township Mayor Jay Bleiman said this week that each municipality will take the full six months' option.

Until new procedures are worked out, Mayor Bleiman said, zoning and planning boards will continue to work as they have in the past.

WAR'S WORST WINTER
For Revolutionary Troops.

(This is the third of a series of four articles on Washington's major military encampments in New Jersey.)

Heavy snow swirled through Morristown on December 1, 1779, as General George Washington rode into town for his second winter encampment in this modest little village in the hills of Morris County.

That snow symbolized the weather for the winter of 1779-80. Already, four snowstorms had whitened the hills in November. Seven more would come in December, followed by 17 others between January and April, when finally the snow would end.

Washington headed on his arrival for the handsome frame mansion that Colonel and Mrs. Jacob Ford had constructed in 1774. It was the finest house in northern New Jersey, worthy of a military commander.

Mrs. Ford, a widow since January, 1776, when her husband died of pneumonia, had invited Washington and his chief officers to share the home that winter. She reserved three first floor rooms for herself and her four children, ranging in age from 8 to 17.

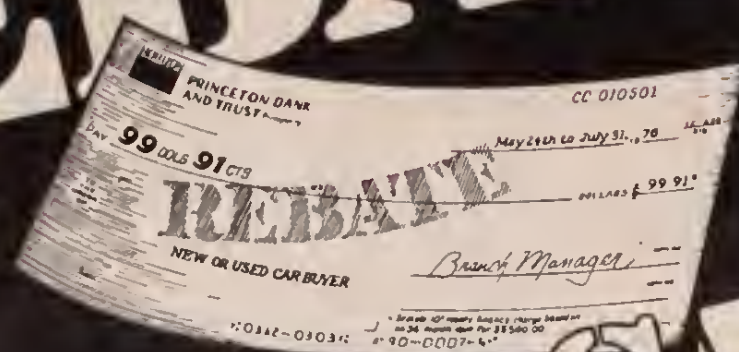

The Ford mansion was typically Georgian - on each of two floors there were four large rooms, separated by central hallways. The hallways on both floors were unusually wide, offering opportunities for large gatherings of people.

Mrs. Washington arrived before Christmas. Work began immediately to remodel two upstairs bedrooms and an office, and to finish a separate log kitchen. Washington wrote General Nathanael Greene:

Questions about McPherson.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
As a taxpayer, I have some questions regarding the departure of Dr. McPherson:
Where in our so-called bare bones budget, are we finding $45,000?

Is it legal to pay an extraordinary sum to one person? How does this fit within the union contract? Does it set a precedent? Are there any parameters or could we be held up for twice as much next time?

If tenure is to be used as a device to extort money from a community, has it not outlasted its purpose (if there ever was a legitimate purpose for tenuring administrators)? Since when is an orderly transition of administration accomplished in one day?

And finally, are we really expected to support a state income tax to provide additional revenues for education if this is a sample of how it is to be expended?

Fireworks a Success

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The committee wishes to thank all who attended the fireworks and made it a great success. We appreciate your support and your cooperation. The great out-pouring of applause and enthusiasm made the entire evening a night long-to-be-remembered. The spirit of "76" was very much in evidence as you showed your appreciation for the young people in the drumcorps and of the fireworks display.

A special thank you to the committee, the people who put it together, Mayors Cawley and Bleiman, to both Township and Borough Police Departments; Betty Boonin, Soroptimists; John Hoff, President First National Bank; John Baker, First National Bank & Jaycees; Ed Salkind, Jaycees; Tom Johnson, Princeton Lions; Stanley Smoyer, Princeton Bicentennial and Richard Baker, Princeton Battlefield Association.

Also "Pep" McCarthy, Bud Vivian, Chuck Nouval, George Boeanfusso, Princeton University; Ellen Hodges & Angie Apostolaros, Chamber of Commerce; Helen Gromostaski for her singing of our National Anthem; Princeton First Aid Squad; Bill Anderson, Princeton Fire Company; members and auxiliary of Post 76 American; all the merchants who assisted in the advance sale tickets.

It is with great pride in being an American and being in this great country that I again say "thanks." My apologies to anyone or any organization overlooked.

Perserverance Rewarded.

To the Editor of Town Topics.

The 300 hardy souls who braved the rain last Thursday evening at Battlefield Park to see and hear the Percussion-Nauts Patriots from Spokane were well rewarded for their perseverance. It was a truly unique, heartwarming experience to watch those 85 young people perform their life, bugle and drum numbers with precision and class.

The Princeton Community Bicentennial Committee was privileged to be able to sponsor this event as part of our celebration of our country's Independence. We want, however, to thank the many community organizations and citizens that aided us in our efforts.

The Princeton Day School graciously provided headquarters and overnight shelter for the group in their gymnasium.

Town Topics, the Packet and WHWH publicized the event extensively and well.

The Battlefield Area Preservation Society and the Historical Society hosted a tour of the Battlefield and Clarke House for the young visitors the morning following the performance and the Princeton University Orange

Key guides conducted a tour of the campus for them.

Last but not least, we are grateful to Mrs. John Gorman of Princeton who has two grandchildren in the group and who brought the group to our attention.

Topics of the Town

Washington Unhappy. "I have been in my present quarters since the first day of December and have not had a kitchen to cook a dinner in. Eighteen of my family, and all of Mrs. Ford's, are crowded together in her kitchen, and scarce one of them able to speak for the colds they have caught."

Such inconveniences were nothing in comparison with the hardships faced by the 8,000 to 10,000 soldiers stationed in nearby Jockey Hollow. Their suffering was almost beyond the bearing.

One blizzard between the 2nd and 4th of January, 1780, saw soldiers "buried like sheep under the snow." The storm left snow four to six feet deep on the roads of Morris County.

Troops were often without food and clothing. Washington wrote that "the soldiers eat every kind of horse food but hay," and an officer in Stark's brigade noted "many a good lad had nothing to cover him from his hips to his toes save his blanket."

By mid-winter, the men had built crude log cabins to fend off the weather. They kept warm beside huge inside fireplaces and cooked whatever food they could forage from nearby farms.

Washington spent a total of 200 days in Morristown that winter, always in despair that the combination of cold, starvation, improper clothing and declining morale might totally ruin the American army. But the army stayed together despite these incredible hardships.

Good News. Winter dissolved into spring and on May 10, 1780, the Marquis de Lafayette returned from France with the bright news that King Louis XVI had dispatched a major force of six ships and 6,000 well-trained men to aid the Americans.

Washington left the Ford Mansion on June 23, 1780, after carefully inventorying all of the house furnishings. He sent Mrs. Ford replacements for the few items that were broken or missing.

The late Douglass Southall Freeman, distinguished biographer of George Washington, wrote this in 1956:

"A mass of evidence shows that the winter of 1779-80 at Morristown and Jockey Hollow was a period of far worse suffering than the corresponding months of 1777-78 at Valley Forge.

"...One finds it somewhat perplexing to know why the hunger and shivering at Morristown have been so nearly forgotten while the miseries of the glooming camp on the Schuylkill are known to every child in the fifth grade."

New Jersey can pause on — and ponder — Mr. Freeman's disturbing words.

AUTO SHOW PLANNED

In New Hope in August. Entries are now being received for the 1976 New Hope Automobile Show, scheduled to be held in New Hope Pennsylvania on August 14 and 15. Hailed as America's Most Complete Automobile Show, it features competitive judging of automobiles dating back to the turn of the century.

Judging for this year's show has been expanded to 40 divisions. Organizers of the show report they expect a record 1,600 cars to compete for trophies valued at more than $6,000.

The highlight of the opening day will be the awarding of the Governor's Cup of the State of Pennsylvania to the finest Vintage Antique. Cars that compete for the cup must have been manufactured prior to 1919 and be in mint condition.

Other divisions being judged on Saturday, August 14 include Cars of the 20's, 30's and 40's, Bugatti, Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg, MG Register, Custom and High Performance, Milestone Cars, Lincoln Continental, Triumph, Replicas, Willys, Corvette, Vintage Racing Cars, Thunderbird, Chrysler 300, Chrysler-Dodge-DeSoto and Shelby Fords.

The second day will feature judging in the classic car division for the annual presentation of the Classic Concours Trophy. The classic award is passed on to winners each year with the owner receiving a scaled down version to keep in his possession.

Other divisions to be judged on Sunday, August 15, include the sleek Jaguar, Vintage Chevrolet, Buicks, Kaiser-Frazer-Darin, Mercedes Benz (including the rare 300 SLs), Oldsmobile, Plymouth, Rolls-Royce, Antique Motorcycles, Avanti, Ferrari, Vintage Fords, Studebaker, Packard, Model A. Fords, Sports Cars, Production Fords, Classic Cars, Antique Trucks and Fire Engines and Lamborgheni and Maserati.

Although the show features all of these classifications, there are many interesting automobiles which do not fall into any of the designated categories. The Directors of the New Hope Show have made special arrangements for these cars and a "Special Interest" section is featured both days.

An estimated ten million Americans are victims of allergic complaints such as hay fever, asthma, hives, eczema, gastrointestinal allergies, allergic headaches, drug allergy, and eye inflammations. Allergic reactions are of many different types, depending upon the substance which caused the reaction, and the body tissues involved. The reason why some individuals are allergic and some are not has not been clearly established, but there is evidence of a hereditary tendency or predisposition.

News Of The CHURCHES

JOINT SEMINAR SET
By Rider and Seminary.
Rider College and Princeton Theological Seminary will jointly conduct a two-week institute on "Religion, Education and The American Revolution" beginning Monday.

The seminar will bring together distinguished historians and other scholars for discussions and a series of on- and off-campus programs focusing on the religious and educational influences of the Colonial Period.

Coordinating the cooperative event are Mrs. Harry B. Kavanaugh, assistant professor of education, Rider College; John M. Mulder, assistant professor of American church history, Princeton Theological Seminary; and A.G. Zimmerman, chairman of the American studies department, Rider College. Special features of the July institute will include field trips to important area churches and battle sites, an authentic recreation of an 18th Century worship service, a program of early American music, and an evening of period food and drink.

A variety of lecture, slide and multi-media programs, ranging from "Meeting Houses"; to "Religion and the Public Schools" and from "Blacks and the Revolution" to "Princetonians and the Revolution," will be presented during the morning, afternoon and evening sessions. The institute will conclude on July 30 with a reception in Trenton's historic Eagle Tavern.

Additional information, including details concerning registration, academic credit and housing, is available from either Dr. Christopher G. Duffy at Rider College, 896-0800, or Dr. Campbell Wyckoff at Princeton Seminary, 921-8300.

CHOIR BOYS TO SING
Sunday at Trinity Church.
Choir boys and men from the Columbus Boychoir Summer Camp will sing Sunday during the 10 a.m. service at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

The 60-voice choir will be conducted by Robert Hobbs, associate director of the Columbus Boychoir and former organist and choir-master at Trinity Church. Included in the choir will be the Columbus Boychoir concert choirboys, who will leave for a several weeks' concert tour in Europe on Wednesday, July 21. James Litton, organist and director of music at Trinity, will be the organist for the service.

Works by Ralph Vaughan Williams, Philip Tomblings, C.E.S. Littlejohn and Antonio Vivaldi will be included. The prelude and postlude for the service will be music for Recorder and Organ, with Amy Ford playing the recorder. The Rev. James R. Whittemore, rector of Trinity Church, will be the celebrant of the Eucharist Service.

FILM WINS AWARD
In National Competition.
Princeton Theological Seminary's new film presentation, "Meant for Ministry," has won the Case Exceptional Achievement Award, it has been announced by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. The honor came after screening at the recent Electronic Media Festival in Boston in competition with entries from colleges and universities across the country.

The 18-minute color program was produced on the Seminary campus for use with general audiences. Not a documentary, it is described as a "message...in pictures, words and music, about education for the ministry in the world of the 70's. It tells its story through voices, faces, even hands." Released two months ago, it has already been viewed in Canada and in Alaska as well as in many other states.

The production staff included Dorothy P. Beeners, who wrote the script and served as director; Wayne R. Whitelock, the Seminary's director of audio-visual media, who was responsible for technical production, sound track and photographs; Alan H. Blatecky, audio-visual specialist, who provided photography and technical services; Dr. W.J. Beeners, director of speech at the Seminary, who coordinated the project and spoke the narration; and Louise L. Goss, director of the New School for Music Study, who handled the sound-slidesynchronization.

SOUTHWORTH 1740

An Authentic Colonial Home
Lovingly Restored to the Standards of our times.

The Main
House

DINING ROOM

LIVING ROOM

Picture living in the real thing, an authentic 230 year old colonial house with beamed ceilings, wide floorboards, cozy - comfortable - charming rooms, a big old fireplace. The sense of belonging right there, of hand craftsmanship and tradition, of being surrounded by a quieter and more peaceful time. This is a home carefully and lovingly restored to preserve its yesteryear heritage, while offering all the "necessaries" required by today's standards of convenience and low maintenance. A truly harmonious blending of "then" and "now" at a sensible, realistic price.

4 bedrooms (one unfinished), living room, dining room, big old fireplace, kitchen, bathroom, foyer, unfinished room, full basement and attic.

A delight to see on over one acre, bounded by a rambling creek and an old mill. Across the street is another old colonial (circa 1836) and a handsome victorian. All are adjacent to the historic and beautiful country town of Crosswicks, New Jersey (founded 1677), amid miles of rolling open farmland.

Very convenient to the Turnpike, I-95 and the Penn Central Railroad for commuting to New York or Philadelphia.

Shown below are the new swimming pool and the two other old restored houses included on the property which are ready to be rented to cover taxes and much of your mortgage.

Fed Up With Sameric, Moviegoers Group Is Planning to Form Community Theatre

Those who feel that prices are too high, runs too long and showings too limited at Princeton's two movie houses; parents who balk at driving children out to Route 1 to see a show and then back to pick them up again; foreign film buffs and readers of cinema reviews who wonder why certain films never seem to make it to Princeton; all should take heart.

The Moviegoers Protest is alive and well and moving forward with plans to form a community theater with professional equipment that provides short-run showings at minimum cost. Come to a meeting Thursday evening at 8 in room 130 of 185 Nassau Street, the old Nassau Street elementary school, and join the movement.

According to Mrs. Betty Fussell, 21 Lilac Lane, the prime mover in this peaceful but determined protest, there are 2,500 people of all ages, professions and interests in the immediate and surrounding communities who have joined together because they "believe moviegoing is a vital community activity."

They protest the takeover of the Garden and Playhouse theaters by the Sameric chain of theaters which a year ago signed a ten-year lease with Palmer Square, Inc., which in turn is owned by Princeton University.

Sameric is one of three commercial chains that have divided up the Philadelphia movie market, which includes Princeton. According to Mrs. Fussell, these chains are designed for large regional areas but not small communities. Princeton's theaters are but two of Sameric's 80-85 installations set up in shopping malls and big cities, and their business operates by long runs ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" ran at the Garden for 19 weeks), high prices and mass-market products.

"Deals" Preclude Variety. Further cutting into the possibility of reasonable turnover at movie theaters operated by chains is the fact that each chain has a sub rosa arrangement with two or three of the eight or nine large Hollywood distributors to show first runs of the major producers. Thus Sameric has an "arrangement" to show films produced by Fox, United Artists and MGM. Budco, which operates the two Prince theaters on Route 1, has a similar deal with Allied Artists, Paramount and Columbia.

A family audience Disney film won't be shown first run here, because it is General Cinema, a national chain that operates the Mercer Mall theaters, that has the "rights" to all Disney films. The economics of it all reaches back to Hollywood which is producing less and less at higher and higher costs. Although the numbers of theaters are proliferating, each movie is contracted for separately for a set number of weeks in intense bidding for the fewer films that are available.

CRUSADER: Betty Fussell continues her campaign for a community responsive movie theater with an open meeting Thursday at 8 at Nassau Street.

Since last February when Moviegoers Protest was first formed, the group has sought signatures on petitions, picketed the Playhouse one cold Saturday afternoon, and attempted to no avail to put pressure on the management of the two theaters. They have also held meetings with Paul Firstenberg, financial vice president of the University, and Fred Blaicher of Palmer Square, Inc.

The University has stated that the function of its town properties is to make money, that it has the right to dispose of these properties as it sees fit, and that it has already done so by signing the ten-year lease. Furthermore, it feels according to Mrs. Fussell, that there is a clear distinction between its functions in town and on campus, that one being solely commercial, the other education, and that the needs of its students are being met by its Visual Arts Program.

Only 35 mm. Theaters. The other places in town, McCosh, McCarter and 185 Nassau Street, where movies are shown, re-runs at reasonable prices, all have 16 millimeter equipment, often in bad condition as at McCarter and certainly unfit to show the whole range of 35 millimeter films on which all the major movies are made.

In May, Moviegoers Protest drafted a formal proposal to Borough and Township Councils, asking that "Princeton University renegotiate their lease with Sameric for the Playhouse and Garden Theaters and that the University reconsider in cooperation with the Councils and the Planning Board the primary functions of these buildings." Nelson Van den Blink from the Borough and Margaret Broadwater and Josie Hall from the Township were dispatched to meet with Leslie T. Vivian, in charge of community relations at the University, but to date there has been no response.

Undaunted, Mrs. Fussell, assisted by Cynthia Gooding, 17 Maple Street and Edmund Keeley of the University English department, has begun looking for suitable real estate. Mrs. Fussell feels that the major cost would be in renting the building and purchasing the equipment second hand, but that the cost of showing films, second and third run, foreign and American, could be "minimal."

"Once you get away from first run films, and the moment variety is considered," she says, "there is no comparison in cost." She envisages a theater similar to the Hights Theatre in Hightstown to which admission is $1 a ticket. "If the community really wants such a theater, it can have it," she asserts. She hopes that many will turn out for Thursday's meeting, because the more people that are alerted the more buildings may turn up for use as a theater.

At the meeting she expects to organize an executive committee which will be charged with raising money, finding a place to rent and dealing with any zoning requirements, all interrelated problems. Then she expects to find a manager, ideally one of the caliber of William W. Lockwood Jr., who ran the Garden "Repertory" series a few seasons ago and who currently runs the McCarter film series.

However, she thinks there are knowledgeable students, who, though they might not know the market as well as Mr. Lockwood does, could do a creditable job of booking the films and running the program, much as he did as an undergraduate.

In the fall Mrs. Fussell plans to send out a mailing to all 2,500 who signed petitions to remind them of the McCarter film series as an alternative until the community theater can become a reality. "It is the only theater in town with a program of films chosen specifically for children," she notes. Also in the fall Mrs. Fussell plans to make her campaign for a community responsive movie theater a political issue, particularly for Borough candidates in whose jurisdiction the University and the two existing theaters lie.

News Of The THEATRES

MEDICAL MELEE
With Moliere. "The Imaginary Invalid," Moliere's bout with hypochondria, will enliven the stage of Murray Theatre starting this Thursday when Summer Intime's production opens a two-weekend run. "The Imaginary Invalid" is the one about the rich eccentric who retains a string of shady doctors to treat his "illnesses." He has a plan to capture a doctor for son-in-law, and save himself some doctor bills thereby, but his daughter doesn't think that's a very good way to treat Blue Cross and she has other plans, largely huilt around her own suitor. There is a clever maid, a concerned brother, a greedy stepmother and a shower of pills of one kind or another. Peter Schifter is directing. In his cast are Richard Ferrugio, as the miserable miser, Shirley Kauffman as the wife, Anne Louise Hoffman as the daughter, and Winnie Holzman, Jamie Horton, Joseph Harbeson, Patricia Gorman, Randy Goldsborough, Peter Hackett and Adam Roth.

FILMS AND COOL
With Classic Series. Summer Intime's Classic Film Series is still grinding on, bringing good old oldies to the air-conditioned screen in McCormick Art Museum on the University campus (behind Murray Theatre, more or less.) "Pal Joey", the Monday night offering, stars Frank Sinatra and Rita Hayworth and all those wonderful Richard Rodgers tunes. "Dial M for Murder" has Grace Kelly, Ray Milland and Hitchcock himself in a great thriller. It's for Tuesday night. "A Flea in Her Ear" is Country Race, a Creative Wednesday night's cooler. It's Theatre Unlimited production the French bedroom farce which will tour the central with Rex Harrison and New Jersey area during late Rosemary Harris in turn-of-the-century Paris. Films are shown at 7:30 p.m. at $1.50 admission.

WANTED: ACTORS
Adult, High-Teen. Actors who fall in the adult or high teen age range are invited to audition for "The Great Cross-Country Race," a Creative Theatre Unlimited production which will tour the central New Jersey area during late August and early September. It's a comedy adaptation for children of the fable of the tortoise and the hare. Director Amie Brockway says she is particularly interested in actors with experience in the fields of improvisation and movement, and who are interested in developing these - and other - acting ensemble skills.

Creative Theatre also needs people on the technical and production side. Auditions will be held upstairs in the Chambers Street building of Nassau Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m. next Monday and Tuesday. Additional information may be obtained by calling 799-1689.

ROCK CONCERT NEXT

In Summer Sounds Series. Funky "Naked City" rhythm and blues will highlight Thursday evening's free Summer Sounds rock concert performed by "J.B. and the Gold Coast Band." Young people are especially invited at 7:30 to Princeton University's Pardee Field (west of Washington Road, between Palmer Stadium and Baker Rink).

Familiar faces in this newly-formed band are Joe (J.B.) Bordash, guitar and lead singer; Sandy "Wild Man Rodan" Bordash on bass; C.P. Roth, drums and vocals; "Sleepy Bob" Palmieri, guitar; and Glen McClelland on electric piano and synthesizer.

At one time members of groups such as the Fordham Road Blues Band, Aqueous Fowl, Montage and Dixie Peach, these young musicians have just merged to feature advanced disco sounds. Special guest artists, the "Fabulous Exciting Meltones," will sit in on breaks.

Their slogan is "Bring your Mammy and WHAMMY JAM!", which loosely translates to "Get down with us and have a good jumpin' time!" Pardee Field is a ten minute stroll from Nassau Street through the University campus, or parking is available in lots off Washington Road or below the soccer and lacrosse fields off Faculty Road.

There will be more free Summer Sounds next Thursday evening, July 22, when

"GODSPELL"
In Hightstown. The Theatre-by-the-Lake, which is inside, by the lake, and not outside by the shore, will present as its second summer show, the musical "Godspell," scheduled to play next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 22, 23 and 24, all at 8:30 p.m.

Songs from "Godspell," by Stephen Schwartz, include the well-loved "Day by Day," "Prepare Ye," "Turn Back, Oh, Man!" and "On the Willows."

Chris Negus will sing the role of Jesus, in this musical parable of love and faith. Negus has been in the touring company of the Leonard Bernstein Mass, as well as in standard musicals.

He will be joined by Art Neill, who will sing both John the Baptist and Judas. Last year, he was Fagin in Theatre-by-the-Lake's "Oliver!"

Others in the cast are Nancy Anderson, Bob Boross, Chris DeBlasio, Michelle Hannay, Jon Mack, Toni Mascherin and Cathy Rudnyansky.

Thomas Cardea and Francis W. Towne are co-directors, and Rosemary Korzon is not only choreographer but a member of the cast as well. Paul Faloona has designed lights, and Mitra Behroozi is managing the stage, assisted by Deborah Marton.

Theatre-by-the-Lake is in Geiger-Reeves Hall on the campus of the Peddie School in Hightstown (South Main and Ward Streets).

"GODSPELL:" John the Baptist (played by Art Neill, right) rehearses with the rest of the cast for Theatre-by-the-Lake's production of "Godspell," due to open next Thursday, July 22 in Geiger-Reeves Hall on the Peddie School campus in Hightstown. Thomas Cardea and Francis Towne are co-directors and Rosemary Korzon is the choreographer.

STREET THEATRE READY
With First Summer Play. Princeton Street Theatre will introduce its summer season with "4 on a Garden," premiering July 15 at Littlebrook School, 8 p.m.

This fast-paced show, written by Abe Burrows, author of "Cactus Flower," presents four couples with four different problems, all in the same apartment in Manhattan. The incongruous situations and how these people find their way out of them provides much entertainment.

The show is directed by Debbie Bellow, also the producing director of Street Theatre. The executive director is Francina White. The assistant director and stage manager is Andrena A. Burgess.

Crew heads are: lights and sound, Paul Berkelhammer, costumes, Dina Blanc, props, Ali Henderson, set, Julie Mel Miller. The cast includes John Fenton, Jon Tenney, Amy London, Ali Henderson, Peter Dolotta, Steffie Kenen, Andy Lassman, Cher Carden, Rochelle Jacobs, and John Wible.

The Hifi Show Is In Town.

See all the major brands, all in one place.

Tech Hifi is the store that's more like a show. Where you can see, touch, and hear all the latest hifi equipment in a variety that exists no place else.

When you enter a Tech Hifi soundroom, you'll be given a soft sofa, and all the time you want, to listen to recorded music that sounds more like a live performance than anything you have ever experienced.

And, just by pushing a button, you'll be able to compare how different combinations of components sound together.

Talk to hifi experts.

One of the reasons why Tech Hifi is more like a show is that our salespeople are more like consultants. They will be on hand to answer your questions, not to pressure you into buying.

When you come across some components that you'd really like to own, chances are they'll be on sale. Because nearly everything at Tech Hifi is on sale every week. (The reason why our prices are so low all the time is we purchase in huge quantities for our 50 locations).

Our size enables us to offer you many service warranties that smaller "discount warehouses" and appliance stores simply can't afford to give.

Listen to ideal systems in every price range from $200 to $7,000.

While you're at The Hifi Show, ask an expert to show you the ideal system for your budget. The two examples we show here are specially Show-priced this week.

NIKKO BSR
Ohm 399

Consider this value-packed $399 system with the new Nikko 2025 am/fm stereo receiver, Ohm E loudspeakers and a BSR 2260X automatic turntable with an ADC magnetic cartridge.

The Nikko 2025 receiver boasts ultra-sophisticated electronic circuitry to deliver 10 watts minimum RMS per channel at 8 ohms from 40 to 20,000 Hz., with no more than 0.8% Total Harmonic Distortion. This is ample power to achieve room-filling volume levels with the efficient Ohm E 2-way (8-inch woofers, 2-inch tweeters) loudspeakers. And the BSR 2260X turntable equipped with a quality ADC magnetic cartridge will keep your records sounding great play after play. It comes complete with a base and a dustcover.

NIKKO Philips
audio-technica

An ideal system for $499 is this one featuring the Nikko 5055 am/fm stereo receiver with 25 watts minimum RMS per channel into 8 ohms. The loudspeakers are MicroAcoustics FRM-2's. With their unique 3-tweeter high frequency array, these excellent loudspeakers provide uniform response throughout your entire listening area. The Philips GA427 semi-automatic turntable boasts belt-drive and a low-speed synchronous motor with an elegant base, dustcover and an Audiotechnica AT90E cartridge.

Learn the finer points of hifi.

You don't have to be a sound engineer to appreciate the way music sounds on a good hifi system. If you would like to learn some of the subtleties of stereo, you'll be interested in the special seminars and clinics that will be presented during The Hifi Show. You can get a schedule of upcoming events in your nearest Tech Hifi.

Win a $7,000 Super System!

No hifi show would be complete without a mind-boggling giveaway. So Tech Hifi is giving away a $7,000 Super System that includes state-of-the-art components by AKG, B*1*C, dbx, ElectroVoice, Koss, MicroAcoustics, Ohm, Phase Linear, Pioneer, SAE, TEAC, and Technics. To be eligible to win, just enter your name at any Tech Hifi.

Artists are Claire Racamato, flute, and Marion Zarzeczna, pianist. Ms. Racamato is a graduate of the New England Conservatory and Ms. Zarzeczna of the Curtis Institute. Both have performed widely and have won various awards.

The program will open with Mozart's Sonata in B-flat major and will later include his Larghetto for Alto Flute. The two musicians will play Telemann's Fantasie in D Major, in which the flautist will use the conical Boehm flute, Debussys' "Syrinx," Three Popular Songs by Bartok, the Marcello Sonata in G Major and Aaron Copland's Duo for Flute and Piano, dedicated to the memory of the flautist William Kincaid.

Mr. Safran's composition, composed this year, is called "Sonata-Fantasies," and has four movements, which Mr. Safran has called Agitation, Scherzo, Nocturne and Pastoral Summer Night Music.

GARDEN

The Sailor Who Fell With Grace From The Sea. Based on the novel by the late Japanese author Yukio Mishima, this romantic horror story stars Sarah Miles as a passionate English widow and Kris Kristofferson as a virile American merchant seaman whose erotic but short-lived romance is shattered by her disturbed young son.

The son's (Jonathan Kahn) major hangup is an obsession with the "purity and perfection" of the sea. When a large American ship is forced to dock, Miles obtains permission to take her son on board where both become captivated by captain Kristofferson. The boy begins to worship the sailor as a living symbol of the sea he loves so well.

But when Kristofferson returns several months later and decides to settle down with Miles as his wife, the boy turns against him, convinced that moving onto land would be the ultimate betrayal of the sailor's essence. Aided by his bizarre playmates, the youth resorts to grisly means to insure that Kristofferson will return to a state of grace with the sea.

Offbeat, but the implicit fascination to the story as handled by writer-director Lewis J. Carlino is too heavy-handed and ponderous to be effective.

IT'S NEW To Us

AUDIO PLUS MORE
Repairs and Sales. Repair work of any kind is hard to find, but an experienced person willing to repair a variety of small appliances is a rarity indeed.

Yet just such a person opened a new store, Audio Plus, on Witherspoon Street this Spring. The owner, Marvin Zaveloff, has been in the electronics business since he was 16 and is able to repair anything from a toaster to a color television.

He also repairs car radios or tape decks, and the removal and installation is included in this service. And best of all, he gives free estimates.

However, if you prefer to do your own TV or radio repair work, the parts are here, too and most at discount prices. For instance all tubes are 50 percent off the list price. Then there are accessories such as earphones, tape clips, automobile antennas, blank cassettes for taping your own program, a Watts Dust Bug that automatically cleans the record while it is being played, and diamond phonograph needles specially priced at $2.95, regularly $6.95.

Mr. Zaveloff plans to carry compact stereo systems by Craig and Panasonic because equipment in the low price was for sale at $95.

range (and this means $100 to $200) is often difficult to find. Although these are still on order, he does have some tape recorders by these companies, and like everything else in the store, the prices are discounted, $23.95 for the Craig one and $31.95 for the Panasonic.

You'll also see eight-track tape players, car radios, and because this is a repair shop, some used televisions in excellent condition. The day we visited a black and white 19-inch Zenith with remote control and a new picture tube with a three-year warranty

As a final feature Audio Plus carries a choice of rock, jazz and soul LP records, with eight-track tapes to be available soon, and Mr. Zaveloff says his prices are the "cheapest in town, a $6.98 record selling for $4.50."

There are selections by The Manhattans, The Temptations, Chick Corea, Bob Dylan, Carole King, Donna Summer and Stanley Clarke.

Located at 146 Witherspoon Street, Audio Plus is open Monday through Saturday from 9 until 5:30.

FOR BUSINESSES, HOMES
A Plant Leasing Service.

The best ideas often germinate by accident, and this is the case with Frank Schimpf's new plant leasing service. When a Princeton hairdresser asked him to decorate his shop with plants from the greenhouse, Mr. Schimpf agreed to think about it.

He told us, "It was the biggest disaster for plants I'd ever seen. The conditions were very adverse as there was no light." However, this was a friend and he wanted to help, so he offered to select plants, check on them weekly and replace those that were beginning to fail.

The results have been marvelous. The hairdresser always has plants and Schimpf Greenhouses loses a minimum of material as everything periodically returns to the greenhouse for tender loving care.

Other businesses are using the service too, and Mr. Schimpf is even working in one private home which he feels is just the answer for the person who loves plants but has a black thumb. For about $156 a month, they can have a gorgeous display of plants, and we suspect that after watching Mr. Schimpf care for the plants over several months that the black thumb may even disappear.

In addition to the monthly fee, there is an installation charge. The rates start at about $15 a month, with a $30 installation charge, and this provides approximately $100 worth of plants that are cared for weekly.

The plants he works with are not unusual. Mr. Schimpf said, "I grow my own things and I grow what works. Many exotic plants just don't do well. I like ivies and spider plants, but I try to grow monstrous stuff so people can say, 'I have one at home, but it doesn't look like that.'"

You Can Buy, Too. Schimpf Greenhouses is also a retail business so you can always buy the plants and care for them yourself. With the exception of the larger trees which come direct for Florida, everything is grown here and so the prices are quite reasonable. For instance a 10-inch Swedish Ivy that has filled out to about twice the pot's size costs $8.

Originally from a Lawrenceville farm that is still being worked, Mr. Schimpf deals with far more than houseplants. He particularly loves herbs and has built a garden at his greenhouses to show people that they don't need to dry and save it all to enjoy them. He commented, "These were always the best gardens on the farm. They smell good and go all summer." He stocks a wide range of herbs, many of which are perennials and best planted in the late summer or early fall.

He also has an organic vegetable garden which he mulched this year with cocoa from Hershey, Pa., and the resulting plants are huge. He told us, "I try to show people what they can do. When they take the time to come down here, I like to have them go home knowing more. I want my business to have a country atmosphere because I'm from the country. This is not a supermarket of plants, but a greenhouse."

Herbs are not the only perennials he grows. Five acres of the farm are devoted to seedlings that commercial growers can buy, winter over and sell in the Spring. However, he also saves some for his greenhouses and September is the best month for planting these. The choice includes Canterbury Bells, Iberis, Delphinium, Gaillardia, Foxglove, Hollyhocks, Shasta Daisies and others.

This is a busy, seven-day a week business. The watering alone is equal to a regular full-time job, yet Mr. Schimpf says "I've never found anything I've been as happy doing."

And in case all this isn't enough, he also grows Geraniums, Poinsettias and sells greenhouses. These start at $380 for a 12 x 14-foot one covered with a Monsanto plastic especially developed for the sun. They come with everything but the heater and exhaust fan and take less than a day to assemble.

Schimpf Greenhouses is at 4363 South Broad Street in Yardville, N.J. Its telephone is 585-5910 and Mr. Schimpf gives free estimates on his plant leasing service.

These are behavior, affect, sensation, imagery, cognition, interpersonal relationships and drugs. The first letter of each forms the acronym "BASIC ID," which Dr. Lazarus uses as a shorthand reference.

According to Dr. Lazarus, multimodal behavior therapy is more thorough than other systems of therapy. He also feels that it is less time-consuming because by asking questions across the BASIC ID spectrum he rapidly gets a total view of the individual. Dr. Lazarus claims that his system results in more durable changes in the patient.

Artists in the show are Will Barnet, Colleen Browning, Marisol Escobar, Audrey Flack, Red Grooms, Joseph Hirsch, Robert Indiana, Alex Katz, Jacob Lawrence, Larry Rivers, Ed Ruscha and Fritz Scholder.

Beginning this fall the bicentennial portfolio will be incorporated into the State Museum's Traveling Exhibition Service for showing in schools and other public facilities throughout New Jersey.

FESTIVAL IS PLANNED
For This Weekend. This Saturday and Sunday the cultural plaza of the State House Complex in Trenton will be the scene of a folk arts festival, presented by the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Division.

This will be the major county-wide bicentennial event for the residents of Mercer County and its surrounding area. There is no admission charge.

The two-day event, beginning at 10 a.m. on Saturday, and noon Sunday, and running until 5 both days, will feature primarily handicrafts and music. The crafters will be on hand to demonstrate their skills and sell their wares.

Represented, among others, will be members of the Handcraft Guild of Central Jersey, the Jersey Shore Craft Guild, and Craft Patch from Yardley, Pa.

The craft people will be demonstrating many of the skills performed in the colonial era, such as basketry, woodworking, and quilting. Others will lean to the more contemporary crafts, including toymakers in both wood and fabric, jewelers of many techniques, and fabric arts for both wearing and decoration.

Also as part of the festival, there is a full program of music to be performed live on an outdoor stage. Among the entertainment will be Catherine Mosely of Princeton presenting a program of folk music, the Cranbury Consort who do a program of colonial music, the Trenton Brass Quintet, Lawrence Stage Band, Tony DeNicola's Jazz Band, a barber shop quartet led by Jim Dishner, and Joe Scarella's band.

Other entertainment will include a colonial encampment demonstrated by the Egg Harbor Guard, and square dancing and clogging to be both taught and performed on the festival grounds.

Pat Thompson of the Handcraft Guild of Central Jersey will perform periodic puppet shows for children.

There will be food made by local citizens, and a concession provided in the spirit of the festival by John Buzza of "Mama" Manukas' restaurant in Trenton.

doubled and Seagers singled to make it a 4-3 game. However, Trenton combined two hits, two walks, and another Princeton error to pick up two more insurance runs.

Princeton had a chance to alone and take control of first place with a win in its next game, against Ewing Post 314, but lack of control by MacPherson and clutch hitting gave Ewing a 10-4 victory. Ewing scored twice in the first without a hit on three walks, two errors and a hit batsman. Princeton managed to pull within a run in the third before collapsing completely. Thompson drove in one run with a single and later cored on a Schroeder triple.

Princeton did not score again until the final inning when the game was well out of reach, taking advantage of four errors by Ewing third baseman Jerry Davis to score two unearned runs. As a consequence, Princeton ended the week with a 9-9-2 -- and still a runner-up by three tantalizing points.

BLUE WINS PAIR

In Summer Lacrosse. Blue defeated Navy, 14-12, and Green, 10-5, last week to remain undefeated in the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League with a 4-0 record.

In a third game, Orange outlasted Red, 13-11, to hand the losers their first defeat. Red, however, remained in second place (3-1) followed by Orange (2-1) Navy and Green, both 1-3, and Black and White. The latter two have yet to win.

Blue's Bob Cottrell scored three goals in the win over Green, while teammates Pete Lehle and Dave Baxter each had two. Hawley Waterman, Bryce Chase and Bert Hixon added single tallies. Pete Budd's three goals led Green.

Lehle and Baxter combined for seven goals in the victory over Navy, Hixon adding a pair. Alex Wert, five goals, and Alex Kinnan, three, paced Navy.

The Mohrman brothers were instrumental in Orange's victory as Morgan and Mace each scored four times. Dave Barnes contributed three more and Fred Bull and Jerry Corcoran added single goals.

For the losing Red, Bob Olsson and Kevin Syberg each connected for four goals. Mark Campbell scored two and Bob Campbell added another and had five assists.

GRID SCHEDULE LISTED

By Lawrenceville School. The 1976 Lawrenceville School football schedule lists eight opponents, starting with a Sept. 25 opener at Penn Charter.

GOLDBERG IS VICTOR

In Men's Singles. Martin Goldberg, an instructor at the Lawrenceville Tennis Camp, defeated Lew Brewer 6-4, 6-1, last week to win the Princeton Men's Singles Community Tennis Tournament.

Also a teacher at the Lawrenceville Camp, Brewer plays for the University of California. Goldberg is a former Lawrenceville player and plays number 1 singles at Williams College.

Goldberg was seeded third. He defeated Frits Dumpel, the No. 8 seed, and Marty Devlin, the No. 2 seed. The No. 1 seed, Ken Wilson defaulted in the second round because of an injury.

Brewer, seeded fifth, defeated Bob Schwartz, the No. 6 seed and a player for Swarthmore College, and Bill Achtmeyer, the No. 4 seed, who plays for Princeton. In the consolation round Frank Oglesby defeated Henry King, 6-4, 6-2.

In the senior flight (45 and older), Marc Knowlton of Rocky Hill defeated Charlie Westoff of Princeton, 7-6, 6-2, in the finals. Bill Arden stopped James Lapsley, 6-1, 6-0, to win the Senior consolations.

The Women's Doubles tournament is in progress with finals slated for the weekend. Entries are still open for the Men's Doubles, starting Monday and the Mixed and Married Doubles, to be played the week of July 26th. Entry blanks are available at the Tennis Office, 71 University Place.

Alex Taft homered for Roma Eterna.

For the Elks, a double by David Abeles and hits by Phil Lam, Pat Kellogg, Todd Breithaupt, and Wes Loigren were not enough.

PIASC came up with its biggest win of the year, a 15-3 decision over Post 76. Winning pitcher Keith Phox struck out eight and scattered six hits. He was aided by the three-hit performances of Matt Tamasi and Mark Migliori, while Gil Falcone had two hits for Post
